DSM-5 criteria for ADHD

Healthcare providers use the guidelines in the American Psychiatric Association's Diagnostic and Statistical Manual, Fifth edition (DSM-5),<sup>[2]</sup> to help diagnose ADHD. This diagnostic standard helps ensure that people are appropriately diagnosed and treated for ADHD. Using the same standard across communities can also help determine how many children have ADHD, and how public health is impacted by this condition.

The number of symptoms required for an ADHD diagnosis (by age group) are as follows:

- Six or more symptoms of inattention and/or hyperactivity-impulsivity for children up to age 16 years, OR
- Five or more symptoms of inattention and/or hyperactivity-impulsivity for adolescents ages 17 years and older and adults.
